Peterson Charges Governor Trying To Control Schools

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — Dr. Frank D. Peterson charged—and Gov. Bert Combs promptly denied—Tuesday that Peterson's suspension as vice president of the University of Kentucky was a step by the governor to seize political control of the school.

Combs said in Frankfort Tuesday night:

"The important question is whether Dr. Peterson used his office to enrich himself. He has not denied that he owned an interest in a laundry, a tire company and a vending machine company which did business with the university."

The governor suggested that Peterson ask for an immediate public hearing if he is innocent of the accusations.

Peterson declared Tuesday, "I have seen Governor Combs and his appointees put more pressure on the University of Kentucky in the past three years than during the other 18 years under five governors."

He added, "Combs heard all a-

Brass Clinic Will Be Held Here Friday

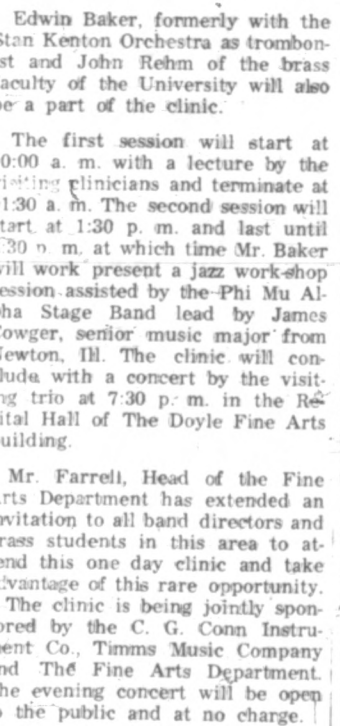

The Fine Arts Department of Murray State College, Richard W. Farrell Director, will present a "Brass Clinic" on Friday, March 8, 1963. Conducting the clinic will be Dr. Thomas Beversdorf and two of his fellow faculty members from the University of Indiana.

As a symphony trombonist, Dr. Beversdorf has played under the baton of such titans as Erich Leinsdorf, Leonard Bernstein, Serge Koussevitzky, Arthur Rodzinski and Howard Hanson. Before joining the Music Department of Indiana University, Dr. Beversdorf taught at the University of Houston and played first trombone with the Houston Symphony and the Houston Light Opera Company also for two years, was a member of the Pittsburgh Symphony.

Edwin Baker, formerly with the Stan Kenton Orchestra as trombonist and John Rehm of the brass faculty of the University will also be a part of the clinic.

The first session will start at 10:00 a. m. with a lecture by the visiting clinicians and terminate at 11:30 a. m. The second session will start at 1:30 p. m. and last until 3:30 p. m. at which time Mr. Baker will work present a jazz workshop session assisted by the Phi Mu Alpha Stage Band led by James Cowger, senior music major from Newton, Ill. The clinic will conclude with a concert by the visiting trio at 7:30 p. m. in the Re-creational Hall of the Doyle Fine Arts Building.

Mr. Farrell, Head of the Fine Arts Department has extended an invitation to all band directors and brass students in this area to attend this one day clinic and take advantage of this rare opportunity. The clinic is being jointly sponsored by the C. G. Conn Instrument Co., Timms Music Company and The Fine Arts Department. The evening concert will be open to the public and at no charge.

Dr. Thomas Beversdorf, University of Indiana, will conduct the Brass Clinic.

This 500 gallon still was taken yesterday by Calloway County Sheriff Woodrow Rickman, Deputy Taylor Gooch, Deputy W. O. Spencer and ABC representative Charlie Adams. It was found near the Kenlake Boat Dock area, along with 20 barrels. The still had not been in operation for some time, however it was set up to operate on short notice.

The still was put in place by boat and was taken out the same way by sheriff's officers. A Murray Rescue Squad boat was used to take the still. Water was obtained from the lake by use of a 100 foot plastic hose.

Dark Fired Market Will Reopen Monday

Dark-fired tobacco sales will be resumed here on Monday, March 11, following a two-week layoff because of bad weather and lack of a handling season.

Murray warehouses will be open all week to receive for Monday's sale.

Three dark-fired sales have been scheduled for next week — on Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Warming temperatures and recent rains have enabled growers to get their dark-fired tobacco down out of the barn and strip it, preparatory to bringing the leaf to market.

Tobacconists estimate some 2-million pounds of dark-fired leaf has not been sold.

Dark-fired sales at both Mayfield and Murray have been suspended since Feb. 27 because of bad weather.

Grand Ole Opry Stars Killed In Crash Of Plane

CAMDEN, Tenn. (UPI) — Hawkshaw Hawkins, Cowboy Copas and Patsy Cline, three of country music's Grand Ole Opry stars, and their pilot were killed Tuesday night when their small plane crashed into the hills of Tennessee during turbulent weather.

A search party found the bodies of the three stars, who climbed to fame picking guitars and singing beautiful ballads, and the scattered wreckage of the plane as dawn broke today in a wooded, hilly region near here, about 70 miles west of Nashville.

The performers and Miss Cline's manager, Randy Hughes, 33, were bound for Nashville Tuesday night after staging a benefit show in Kansas City for a country music disc jockey who was killed in an automobile accident.

Hughes, son-in-law of Copas, was found for Nashville Tuesday night after staging a benefit show in Kansas City for a country music disc jockey who was killed in an automobile accident.

Miss Cline, a native of Winchester, Va., was named "outstanding female vocalist" last year by country and western music publications. She became a Grand Ole Opry regular in 1959. Among her biggest hits were "I Fall To Pieces," "She's Got You," and "Heartaches."

Hawkins was a west Virginian who had been with the Opry eight years. His wife is Jessi Shepard, another Opry star. Some of his better known songs were "Slow Poke," "Soldier's Joy" and "Twelve Miles from Home."

One of Copas' better known hits was "Alabam."

The four victims took part in a benefit show in Kansas City Sunday night for Cactus Jack Chiles, a disc jockey killed last year in an automobile accident.

Another country music star, Billy Walker, said he had intended to return to Nashville with the four but there was not enough room in the plane and he took a commercial flight instead.

Hawkins was the father of a 14-month-old son and his wife was expecting another child.

Camden is about 70 miles west of Nashville.

Fulton City, Defending Regional Champ, Carries Good Record Into Meet

Knights-Comets Open Tonight

Defending regional champion Fulton City will carry one of the better records into the classic as play opens in the First Region meet here tonight.

The Bulldogs, one of the favorites to walk away to the big trip, spent an 18-6 mark for the season's campaign. The much-talented about Loves Blue Devils will enter the meet with a 26-5 mark and journey tough Paducah Tilghman, with a 19-7 record.

All three of the top contenders have faced some tough competition and the pressure of the regional tournament will be no new challenge.

St. Mary's, making its first trip to the classic, opens the tourney tonight at 7 o'clock with Carlisle County. Both were runners-up in their respective districts. The Knights extended Tilghman to three overtime before losing at Paducah.

Carlisle County which has the poorest won and lost record of the participating teams at 6-17, lost to Fulton City 32-43 in the finals of the First District.

St. Mary's contributes an 18-9 season mark to the field that has a combined record of 128 wins and 82 losses.

The second game tonight pits Otis Dining's Tornado with Jack Story's Mayfield Cardinals. Dining is making his 20th appearance in the regional and Story his 12th.

Action in the lower bracket begins Thursday night as Fulton City faces Benton (10-14) and Leaves meets North Marshall (15-13).

Two semi-final games will be played on Friday night and the championship contest Saturday night at eight o'clock.

Basketball prognosticators are already looking for the combined draw to result in record crowds every session. Admission is $1.75 chair, $1.25 reserved bleacher, and general admission $1 adults and 50 cents for students.

The officials are Charley Irwin of Hopkinsville and Bill Knight of Paducah. Erik Sparks, Benton, a scorer and R. E. Goodson, Murray, timer.

Plant food is also spread from the new plant located at Benton. This involves the spreading of lime and other plant food, on the fields.

Assistant manager of the firm is Guy Wilson and Mrs. Glenace Edwards is the bookkeeper.

Other employees of the business are Mrs. Jack Bailey, E. G. Mo-hundro, Ollis Anderson, Sam Adams, Cassel Garrison, Rudy Bucy and Frank Coles.

The Soil Improvement Association is located on Industrial Road where it has grown and developed down through the years.

Perry is a deacon and a teacher in the First Baptist Church. He is a graduate of Murray High School, Western State College, and has done graduate work at the University of Kentucky.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Perry. H. M. Perry of Murray and C. H. Perry of Jackson, Mississippi are brothers.

Long active in civic and business affairs, Perry is also a member of the Murray Rotary Club. His abilities as a speaker have gained prominence and he has often been called on as a master of ceremonies.

2 Business Professors To Attend Indiana Meet

Dr. Thomas Hogancamp and Prof. George Ligon, business department, will attend the 16th Conference on Business-Teacher Education at Indiana University Friday-Saturday.

The theme of this conference is "Subject-Matter Preparation of the Business Teacher."

Lettermen Will Appear Here On Next Wednesday

The Lettermen, one of the freshest vocal blends in the entertainment field, will appear in the auditorium at Murray State College Wednesday, March 20th at 8:00 p. m. Those who wish to attend this delightful program sponsored by the Student Council may purchase their tickets for $1.00 in advance or $1.25 at the door.

The Lettermen try to fill the current entertainment gap by giving the public, adults, as well as youngsters, what they want to hear. They blend their voices on the old, standard ballads in combination with today's new instrumentation. They sing folk songs, old songs, new songs, but always in their style.

Tony, Jim, and Bob, whose Capitol Records have sold in the millions, love their work to the point where it is not actually work at all. When they're not singing on stage, they're more than likely off in a corner singing for pure enjoyment. They rehearse no matter where they are and usually end up singing for a group of fascinated fellow travelers.

Contrary to most vocal groups, the boys all have the same range and interchange their parts, singing the melody line, top or bottom. They feel another reason for their success is the fact that all do solos which make them much more interesting to watch. On the stage, they also throw in comedy, play instruments and kid each other.

The Lettermen are not just a vocal group, they are entertainers.

Girls' Rifle Team Loses To Western, 757-746

Decorator's Notebook

by
A. B. Cross

UNITY OF DESIGN

One of the most difficult accomplishments in creative art is the complete understanding of the which can come only with repeated trials and experience, is the attainment of unity, contrast, and variety in one and the same composition.

Unity is of many kinds, unity of character, period, purpose, material, position, tone, and proportion. Heavy furniture calls for vigorous textures in strong colors and large rooms with high ceilings. An important mantel may dominate a room both by its size and location. One cannot neglect this feature, but must recognize it, aligning the furniture arrangement with the mantel, thus creating a single unified composition and helping to create unity by position.

Unity can be maintained if thought is concentrated on the essentials of the problem and all that is irrelevant is eliminated. Suppose a dining room is to be decorated. Let it contain all that may conduce to dining in the most agreeable manner, and nothing that may detract from this end. Perhaps it is a bedroom that is being decorated. Let everything in it conduce to sleep and rest, to the maintenance of a peaceful atmosphere, and to the more intimate life of its occupant.

A room should have total unity. Generally the main background areas should be close to each other in total values with accents giving contrast by either color or form. A room in which patterned covers are used for walls and floor should usually have drapery materials and large upholstery pieces that are close to the background in tone. In rooms with backgrounds and main areas in dark colors it is usually necessary to have contrasting or white or light tones minor details.

Unity of proportion is also necessary. A large and heavy room would with heavy supports would carry the impression of a group of decorative elements that are well large pieces of furniture and be used in small rooms. It is important to use in any position in the room, such as a chair, a table, or a lamp, to be in proportion to the space and to the other elements of the room. The decorative elements of the room, furniture, and furniture.

Goshen Ladies Give Program For World Day Of Prayer

"More Than Conquerors" was the theme of the program presented at the World Day of Prayer program held by United Church Women of Calloway County on Friday afternoon at one o'clock at the Goshen Methodist Church.

Mrs. Johnny Walker of the host church was the leader for the worship service. She was assisted in the presentation of the program by Mrs. John Watson and Mrs. John Archer.

An interesting story about Korea was presented by Mrs. Lennis Hale of the Goshen Church. Mrs. Walker discussed the projects sponsored by the United Church Women.

Special music was by the ladies of the North Pleasant Grove Cumberland Presbyterian Church with the song, "Holy Spirit Breathe On Me," sung by Mrs. Ed Glover and Mrs. Thomas Jones, accompanied by Mrs. Merritt Lawson.

Mrs. Charles Crawford of the College Presbyterian Church is the president and welcomed those present. The secretary, Mrs. Harry Whigmore of St. John's Episcopal Church, called the roll with six churches being represented.

Announcement was made of the May Fellowship Day program to be held at the First Methodist Church the first Friday in May. Rev. John Archer, pastor of Goshen Church, led the benediction. Mrs. Watson and Mrs. Groover Parker of the host church were the ushers.

Mrs. Inez Hopkins Program Leader At The WSCS Meeting

The Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Bethel, Brooks Chapel, and Independence Methodist churches met Monday evening at seven o'clock at the parsonage in Almo.

Mrs. Inez Hopkins was the leader for the program on the subject, "Teach Us To Pray". Others taking part in the discussion were Mrs. Polk Tyler, Mrs. Boyd Bizzell, Mrs. Royal Parker, and Mrs. Layne Shanklin.

The president, Mrs. Ralph Evans, presided at the meeting. The meeting was closed with the covenant of prayer.

Mrs. Shanklin, the pastor's wife, served refreshments to the members and one guest, Mrs. Laura Carr of Latham, Tenn.

A New Thriller OFF THE DEEP BLUE END BY JOHN CREASEY

CHAPTER 22

THE ROOM was dark and bathed in the blue light of a night light. The Villa itself was gentle and stood out clearly against the tip of the hill as Richard Rollison, driving a tired car, drove along the main road. The Villa fell out of sight just about the spot where he had climbed the wall—and left a taxi driver would have given him up a long time ago. They turned onto the private road.

Another car, with a policeman in it, was only fifty yards behind it. It had stopped, to let the policeman get out at a spot where he could watch the house. There had been very little traffic, nothing at all to hint at trouble.

The headlights of Rollison's car fell upon the back of the Villa. No one was in sight. The back door was closed. A path led to the front door. Rollison rang the bell.

After a pause, a maid answered. She was a middle-aged woman in black with a tiny white apron and lace collar. Obviously she expected him. "Mr. Rollison is not at home," she said, "but Dr. Morency is. Will you see him?"

"Please," said Rollison gravely.

"This way, please."

"Thank you. Will you be good enough to allow my escort to wait outside?" added Rollison. "He is from the Commission of Police." He beamed. If he could have a glass of red wine, he would be grateful.

"It shall be done, sir."

"You are very good."

Rollison stepped into the hall. The first glance told him that this was not just another villa. This was the home of a millionaires and had probably been built at a time when money had not mattered. One did not have to use the strange motif in order to admire the loveliness of design, or sculpture and painting, but everything was slightly tainted, corrupted.

A man came, briskly. It was Raoul.

His look was aggressive; there was an open sneer on his face. "Hello, greet me," Rollison pleasantly. "Feeling better?"

"I am not feeling so well as I shall one day," said Raoul. "What do you want?"

"Chicot."

"No one named Chicot lives here."

"Poor fellow," said Rollison. "Have you murdered him too? Who killed poor Gaston Raoul? Was it the man who was to crack my head in like a piece of china?"

"Your head will crack soon enough," Raoul was roughly blunt. "And all the police in the Commission won't save you when we're ready! You'd better come this way." He turned and led the way out of the room, along a narrow passage which was decorated in exactly the same fashion, into a long, narrow room.

Rollison stopped, missing a step, for suddenly this room changed color.

Raoul gave a savage grin. "The hell motif," he sneered. "You'd better get used to it; you'll be visiting the real place soon enough."

Rollison hardly heard the words.

The lighting came from red glass or red porcelain set in the floor, the ceiling, and the walls. Everything was washed in the same deep, blood red.

Into this room shuffled Dr. Morency.

"I am glad to have the pleasure of meeting you, Mr. Rollison," said Dr. Morency. He had a gentle, hissing voice, gentle, lined eyes, tinged with red. Everything would have been gentle about him, had it not been for his face. Just as the devil was depicted in the paintings, so it was in Dr. Morency.

He did not offer to shake hands.

"I wanted to see you, although I understand that you are under a misapprehension, went on Dr. Morency. "No one named Chicot lives here."

"To tell you that I would find him here," said Rollison. "I am now going to have a look through the Villa. I'm sure you won't mind. I could call the police to help me, of course, but there might be some little formalities if I do that. Shall I manage on my own?"

Raoul said thinly: "I'll kill you first."

"But I have to leave here alive," murmured Rollison. "You see what a delicate situation it is. I have been attacked in my hotel. Attempts have been made to poison me. If there's trouble, I simply tell the police that I discovered you were responsible for the crimes. If I die, the police will have a long statement, delivered by a bank. It will tell everything I know. Will you come with me, doctor, or shall I go alone?"

Morency said in his hissing voice:

"You must do what you think best, Mr. Rollison, but it is a big mistake to think that there is anything here to shame us." His hooded eyes blinked, and he

NOTICE REGARDING ESTATE OF PEARLIE B. McNUTT, DECEASED

Jesse McNutt, Floyd McNutt, and Irma McNutt, heirs at law and widow of Pearl B. McNutt, deceased, who died on or about February 14, 1963, have agreed to dispense with administration of the estate of said Pearl B. McNutt, and will present application and request order dispensing with administration and confirmation of appointment of Jesse McNutt as Trustee for said estate to Judge Robert O. Miller, Calloway County Court, on the 11th day of April, 1963, at 10:00 o'clock a.m.

Jesse McNutt, Floyd McNutt, and Irma McNutt, said heirs at law and widow of Pearl B. McNutt, hereby give notice that any and all claims of any nature against the Estate of Pearl B. McNutt be submitted, properly verified according to law, to: Mr. Jesse McNutt, Trustee, 1405 West Main Street, Murray, Kentucky, who is the person designated by said widow and heirs at law as Trustee for said estate, authorized to pay all lawful claims, if any, presented to him according to law. All claims must be presented prior to April 11, 1963. Any claims not presented on or before the 6th day of December, 1963, shall be forever barred. This, the 6th day of March, 1963.
